THE UGLY AMERICAN

Sandra Church, popular and attractive Broadway star, has been set by producer-director George England to make her screen debut opposite Marlon Brando in Universal-International's "The Ugly American.

The petite reddish-blonde actress was secretly brought to Hollywood from New York several weeks ago for an extensive screen test that resuited in her being chosen over more than a dozen other top actresses who were tested for the plum role.

In The Ugly American, adapted from the best-selling novel by William J. Lederer and Brando, U.S. Ambassador to combat Communist Anti-American influence there.

The Canvas Curtain

The Iron Curtain may be a concrete wall in Berlin, high barbed wire fence or deep jungle at many other places, but in London it is 60,000 square feet of painted canvas.

That's the dimension of a massive cyclorama that completely surrounds a principal set representing Chinese Communist headquarters in Leo McCarey's "Satan Never Sleeps," now before the cameras in London.

When stars William Holden, Cilfton Webb France Nuyen and more than 100 others of the film troupe report for work each day, they duck under a four-foot slit in the canvas to get to the set, and again, duck under it when leaving. Unlike the restrictions at the Iron Curtain, there are no border guards or control formalities on the set of the 20th Century-Fox production since employees and invited guests can get on the studio premises without difficulty.

Cummock, Oct. 6. Mr Emrys Hughes, Scottish Labour Member of Parliament, said on his return from a visit to Moscow that Russian children were being taught to sing anti-American marching songs. At least six had been trans-lated from the jingles sung by Scottish ban-the-bomb demons-trators at Holy Loch, anchorage used by United States nuclear-armed Polaris submarines.

CHORUS Mr Hughes gave reporters the Scottish dialect chorus of one includy which had been traisloted into Russian and was now

SOW, LITTER AND YOU

You can cash in on our Pig Breeding development with guaranteed profits which bring a far better return on your money than is average.

Multiple breeding spread over the Home Counties is scientifically planned to reduce production costs. Indeed, many of Britain's largest specialist pig breeders are among our clients.

As pointed out in a recent B.B.C. European Broadcast concerning our company, our systems of breeding pigs for the public is "very original and profitable to pig owners".

Our proposition is this:

We will register you as the owner of pedigree breeding sows of championship class and line for breeding at our combined breeding and fattening Model Danish Piggeries at Ivinghoe, Buckinghamshire, and will pay you a fixed price for the litters farrowed, which will guarantee profit returns at above average rate. You will receive payment of fixed profits at six monthly intervals, together with a certified account. The sows are fully insured against all mortality risks by arrangement with leading insurers who recognise our high standard of efficiency, management and production.

It is not possible to give full details here but if you are interested in participating on a minimum outlay of £100.0.0d, please write or telephone our local agents:

Sometimes, from the pages of a newspaper or book, a name leaps out to stir the memory. for a few seconds it is hard to place. Then gradually, some of the story comes back — a scandal maybe, an adventure, perhaps a triumph. But always, as the facts fall into place, one question remains: Where is that person now? Today, the China Mail introduces a new feature, bringing you news of the men and women who once made headlines.

THOSE

A LREADY the first invitations have gone out...it's the start of another party season. But there is still time to find the dress that could have been made just for you. And this is it—the most feminine, flattering froth of Bri-nylon, with all the allure that flounces give. Italian inspired, it has a fitted bodice with a scooped neckline. And, best of all, it's uncrushable. Obtainable in all the loveliest shades, including dazzling pinks, bright turquoise, berry red, and bitter chocolate. By Frank Usher. The price? About 30gns. And worth it.

school" is the latest subject to get the full treatment from the experts, and wading through their advice I certainly got the impression that it was going to be the most tranmatic day in my life as well.

This sort of attitude is clearly eatching. I was told by a well meaning friend that, as my daughter had never been to nursery school. I could expect difficulties and reactions from her hist day at school. Yet all worked out better than I could have hoped. I saw no hysteri-cal children or sobbing mothers. The staff radiated that mixture of warmth and authority which seems to evade most parents. And in fact the past week of despatching and collecting has been rewarded with great moments of happiness and amuse-ment. No one mentioned that. It seems obvious to me that if you have an emotional feeling is going to be trans-mitted to the child. All the same I had worrleda little. I'd been got at, and at the last minute I fell for it. How sheep-like can you get? Had I worrled a little more, the prophecies of doom may have nebody much is surprised to learn that the "subsidised" marriage has become part of the way of life. Hundreds of thousands of young American couples marry without the means of selfsupport and either go on to earn no money at all, or not enough to live on. Research on young marriages in Iowa by Dr Lee Burchinal revealed that only a third of the couples could maintain continuously a separate home of their own and that some regular financial assistance from parents, apart . from the provision of a residence, was acknowledged by more than hair the young wives.

nobody seems unduly perturbed about the state of our children's teeth. A report in 1948 showed that the average five-year-old had 4.3 decayed, missing or filled teeth. No one took much notice and when the next report appeared in 1958 the figure had rison to 5.7. Your guess for 1968 is as good as mine.

and almost everywhere else in the world, the only children who go to boarding schools are those in need of specialised attention. No one thinks much of eight-year-olds leaving home over here. I do not mean to raw a parallel between our educational system and others; but I did sympathise with the Italian mother I saw on a station last week. Married to an Englishman and persuaded to give their child "the world's, best education," she broke down as the train went off, sobbing, "It seems so unnatural."

Can you dance the Pachanga

It's the newest dance craze

ITS finally with us, the dance craze that has been sweeping the United States. It's called the Charanga Pachanga, and whether it catches on here as did the mambo and the cha cha, depends almost entirely on a small group of Hongkong musicians.

cians who play at all the top nightspots in Hongkong get sufficiently interested in the dance-to introduce it, then it will catch fire, for Colony nightclub goers are very quick to grasp new steps.

If on the other hand the musicians show no interest, the Pachanga won't even get off the ground.

But it's got a tremendous beat, and in the hands of these gifted men of music, it becomes infectious.

I said the tune titles were hardly pronounceable. Well here are a few examples into which you can try and sink your teeth: "Que Cocine Caridad," "Le The first Pachanga album Brisa Y Yo," "Ahora Me Toca

Some of these series of steps have unique titles such as the "Indian Hop Step," "Limping Step," "Scissors Step," "Charleston Slide" and the "Charanga Falling Step-Basic."

Apparently one of the basic requirements for this dance is a handkerchief, though where it fits in I don't know.

This album then is an exciting one and a must for any collector of dance records. It may, in due course, take its place alongside dances such as the Charleston, the Tango, the Mambo, the Cha Cha and Rock and Roll.

Snyder is in his element here. He has the service of fine musicians and a host of lovely melodies to which he certainly does justice. From some of the greatest Broadway musicals, he plays 'If I Were a Bell," "The Sound "Everything's Music," Coming Up Roses," "Bali Ha'i" "Anything Goes" and others.

This is an album that generates much excitement. The music is sweet, and it has the beat. It should certainly help to brighten your day.

Ferrante and Teicher —two of the biggest names in modern show business.

Unquestionably the number one piano team in America today, these two talented young men who look every inch like modern day professors, heighten their already mighty stature with a splendid album for United Artists. It's called Hits" Nick "Golden Piano Perito conducts the orchestra: Ferrante and Teicher supply the magic.

For magic it certainly is as these two pianists bring a rare sparkle to the keyboard and a host host of well loved melodies such as "Exodus," "Autumn Leaves" "Begin The Beguine" "Till" and the "Warsaw Concerto."

The backing of a 28 piece orchestra only adds to the excitement of a memorable series of performances.

Connie Francis will be returning to Britain this year to make film. Apparently Richards Cliff OF Adam Faith will appear as guest stars in the motion picture. The title of the venture is to be "Cooks Tour"!

It marks a change in role for this up and going young singer (bearing in mind the average lifetime of stardom in the 'Pop' world) in that Connie will also be co-writer of the script

 As a footnote; Connie recently flew to West Berlin to join up with Ed Sullivan and Louis Armstrong. They are to telefilm a show together which will have an audience of American servicemen.

With all the fan clubs with which the Colony is graced, it seems reasonable to assume that there is a lot of talent about.

Even though most of it, from what I have seen so far, is to be only imitation, surely something could be done to promote interest in popular music amongst local amateurs?

Our radio stations have done quite a lot in recent years by staging talent competitions and so on. What could be done now, putting Shapiro.
